SHOOTING AFFRAY.

About quarter past ten o'clock last night, a difficulty occurred at the entranc of the Parlor Music Hall on Second street near Jefferson, between a young mananed Lou Selby and Mr. Dick Pruryer in which the former was shot through the left thigh, the ball going in in troot and coming out behind, making a severe but not dangerous wound. From what we could learn of the until the defent of the left. Mr. Pruryer acted purely on the defen-sive. He was standing in the front part of the saloon, when Selby, who was very much under the influence of liquor, came up, and without a word struck him quite when the latter repeated the blow. They then clinched and were hus'l dout of doors by the door-keeper of the salcon. As soon as they struck the sidewalk Pruryer drow a pistel and fired two shots, one of which took effect as described. The wounded man was taken to the Admission of the Admission wounded man was taken to the Adams street station, when his wound was examined by Dr. Dromgoole. He was afterward conveyed to the residence of his father, Judge Selby. Pruryer was arrested, and will have an examination this morning. The door keeper at Thompson's made quite a narrow escape—s ball grazing and "barking" his log. Beyond the loss of a little piece of skin, however, he suffered no material injury.

> Dear Appeal: There is but little to add to what you have already published regarding the into disaster to the ill-fated floating in the river at Stockley's Landing, which, it is thought, is that of Captain Jordan or the mate. The night of the list was calm and beautiful, and the concussion occasioned by the explosion fairly made the earth tremble. There was nothing left of her standing above the main deck to define her former outline.
>
> Her crew workest gallantly to save the nothing left of her standing above the main deck to define her former outline. Her crew worked gallantly to save the lives of those left on the wreck. There was no cry of distress. No help was near except their own brave hearts and strong arms. The lifeboat extrict some to the shore, while others took the "leap for life" and sank to rise no more, while those who could swim gained the bank scorched by fire and steam. A cabin occupied by three wood chappers was the only habitable place near, where the poor creatures made the land, but here they found hospitality, which could not be excelled in a palace for its warmth and welcome. J. M. Throop, P. M. Wood, W. J. Cele, Henry Halstoad and Richard Lake, of the Memphis and St. Louis Railfoad Engineer corps, were conspicuous in miding the sufferers, is were also R. J. Olimstead, John Fink, Major John McCarrin and James Turner, efficiens. Of the pallantry and hospitality of Captain Luker, of the City of Cairo, I have before spoken, but the name of the "City of Cairo," of the Memphis, St. Louis and Vicksburg line, Captain Jas. P. Luker, Shiverly and Hall, should be known in every hut and home along our great river. Such acts of mercy and brotherly love are worthy of all praise, and will live in memory and be whispered in prayers as long as one of the crew survives of the ill-fated "Speay" that perished in the Elbow on the night of the Sirt uit.
